The Public Servants Association (PSA), as a major union for public-sector employees, is reaching out to support communities by assisting clinics across the country with pressing needs.

The first initiative in this project involved assistance with much-needed renovations at Motlhabeng Clinic in Mahikeng, North West. The PSA assisted the Clinic with replacing toilets, tiling, installing a new gate and painting. These initiatives underscore the PSA's dedication to improving community health and well-being through tangible actions.

In recognition of the vital role that healthcare facilities fulfil in communities, the PSA has stepped forward to enhance the environment in which patients receive care and healthcare workers render services. The renovations at Motlhabeng Clinic will provide a more hygienic, welcoming, and efficient space for healthcare providers and patients, ensuring access to a comfortable and dignified experience.

The PSA believes that investing in healthcare facilities is essential for the overall health of communities. In this project, the PSA aims to not only improve physical infrastructure of clinics but also promote a conducive environment for patients and healthcare workers.

The PSA is committed to not only protecting and promoting the rights and interests of public-sector employees but also making a positive impact in communities relying on public servicers.
