

Public wage bill: PSA wants Ramaphosa to intervene Sunday 1 November 2020 - 2:10pm The Public Servants Association is declaring war. Finance Minister Tito Mboweni proposed to freeze the wages of state employees but the PSA says it wasn't consulted. It's taking aim at the Public Service and Administration Minister and wants the president to intervene. eNCA's Heidi Giokos has more details. Courtesy #DStv403 JOHANNESBURG - The Public Servants Association (PSA) is declaring war. This after Finance Minister, Tito Mboweni proposed a freeze to the wages of state employees. The PSA says they were not consulted. The union is now calling on the Public Services and Administration Minister, Senzo Mchunu and the president to intervene. PSA says the last time they met with Mchunu was before lockdown. Public servants say they must not be left to suffer. eNCA requested an interview with Mchunu, but he was unavailable.
